To whom it may concern,

On November 4, 2015, Kathryn Lang-Slattery made a presentation to members and guests of the Military Heritage Museum: Discovering the Ritchie Boys of WWII.

Kathryn discussed the book she wrote, Immigrant Soldier, but the audience she had here that day was primarily curious about the Ritchie Boys in general, about whom most of us had never heard.

She was very knowledgeable, clearly having done much research, including, beyond extensive interviewing of her Ritchie-Boy uncle for the book, interviewing other Ritchie Boys and researching the Holocaust.

The group here for her talk was very interested in the contributions the Ritchie Boys made to the allied war effort, and Kathryn's presentation was very lively and informative.

I heartily recommend her as a speaker for any group!
